The question whether the Perryssummer is now in serious doubt. The fallen short of the amount expected. larsh in round numbers is available from the State Aid Fund and the Main Market Road Fund but upon codition that the balance of fifteen thousand dollars shall be raised before June 1, 1915, by the abutting property owner. and from other sources.

There will be a meeting of the upriver property owners and of all other persons interested in securing this road improvement on Friday evening, May 21st, at seven thirty at the rooms of The Perrysburg Civic Association, for the purpose of considering the proposed improvement.

A letter from Eugene Rheinfrank who has been interested in assisting to secure this improvement follows: Editor Perrysburg Journal,

Dear Sir:-

The proposed improvement of the road between Toledo and Perrysburg is of such vital consequence to the property owners and citizens generally that a short letter calling this to the attention of the public would seem proper at this time.

Travel through Perrysburg has for a short time been avoided on account of the condition of the River Road. Just as Perrysburg and its merchants have lost by reason of this bad condition, so has Maumee profited.

Real estate values in Maumee and icinity have increased much more rapidly and property has been in greater demand simply because the usually excelent condition of the River Road on the west side has made Maumee easily accessible to the city. The location and beauty of Perrysburg naturally fit our village for Toledo's most desirable residential suburb. With the improvement of the River Road and of Fassett Street bridge, which is about to be paved with wood block, Perrysburg will be even more accessible to Toledo's business center than will Maumee. The continous stream of traffic which will immediately follow the completion of these highways in Wood County will create the demand for a new hotel in Perrysburg.

A SHORT JOURNEY

Will be Appropriately Observed by With Interesting Notes for Journal Readers to Enjoy.

> Philadelphia, Pa., May 11, 1915. Mr. E. L. Blue,

Editor "Perrysburg Journal,"

Dear Friend:-In addition to sending Church notes I am happy to comply with your request to "drop a line" in the way of a letter for the "Journal" readers. If I could depict the high-lights of the bits of experience and pleasurable moments I have enjoyed along the way, I could hope to produce a message of general interest. But I lack the nimbleness of expression to do justice to the passing show of life, reflected from the many angles of contact which have been mine during the crowded days of the past week. I was favored at the outset by having a daylight ride over the Alleghenies from Pittsburgh east. There was a tang in the atmosphere, a smile in the genial sun, a charm in the spring freshness that gave to life a zest, and increased the beauty of the scenery which at all times is noted for grandeur. The call of the flowing streams and babbling brooks must have entered deep into the hearts of a multitude of men and boys, for I saw at least a thousand fishing along the way. I wished them joy and hoped that the finny tribe would be more accomodating, more inclined to be hooked than those supposed to reside in the classic Maumee.

The first new sound that assailed Brotherly Love was the cry of the Jitney driver. An epidemic of the Jitney has spread throughout Philadelphia and is increasing, I'm told, at the rate of thirty cases a day. burg River Road will be improved this | p. m., I counted in ten minutes 763 | themselves on the sidewalks and he and Friday at Perrysburg. automobiles going North and equal- might also have added an admon- fows: ly as many going in the other directition to young ladies who skate Sunday School 9:30. by the regular taxing authorities have Jitneys. This is the season for Delaware shad, the most delectable fish in the world; and Philadelphia is the place where it is served in all forms to perfection. But alas, like many other good things it has its thorn or I should say its bone, no, bones! It has more bones to the square inch than a centipede has feet. If the wizzard Burbank, now that he has produced a spineless cactus, would turn his attention to developing a boneless shad, fame and fortune awaits him for all time.

Last Thursday evening, May 6, I went to hear Professor Kuno Meyer, the German Savant who recently severed his connection with Harvard University because a student was permitted to publish a prize poem that was anti-German in sentiment. Professor Meyer is a scholar of international fame. He predicted a world-wide war in which the United States would inevitably be drawn. May his prophecy never come true. The Lusitania disaster coming the day after seemed to indicate the fulfillment of his prediction speedily, so far as the United States is concerned. The feeling here is intense. Widely different opinions prevail. On one hand the Lusitania's destruction, with its fearful loss of life, is characterized as the greatest crime of the century; whereas
